Race will begin at the Start/Finish location. Black solid line leads you out the course. The runners/walkers will be following the solid black line until they reach the loop at 6th & Yale St. At this point the runners/walkers will do the loop again.

The runners/walkers will then follow the dotted red line to complete the loop, and then return to the Start/Finish line following the same path as running out.

There will be volunteers at each intersection directing runners/walkers in the correct direction to run. They will have safety vests and orange flags to help them stand out. There will also be directional signs on the course to help with direction. The pace person will lead the race so the runners/walkers have someone to follow and this will also alert volunteers to the fact the race is coming their way. The end of the race will be denoted by a sweeper, this person will tell volunteers they are free to leave and allow the timing company to know all runners/walkers have crossed the finish line.
